

EDITORIAL

It is our pleasure to present the November Edition of our Departmental Journal, International Journal of Educational Research. This is the number two of the twelfth edition. The Editorial board consists of a team of experts in various educational disciplines both locally and internationally.

The contributors to this edition are academia and professionals in different disciplines and these have influenced their various researches both theoretically and empirically. In all we have over twenty articles that were peer reviewed addressing different topical issues in various fields of education and allied disciplines.

We therefore encourage researchers educators and captains of industries to enjoy the reading as various contributors have been able to provide links between town and gown in providing solution to numerous societal issues.
