

The rains have stopped!

Nyambura Salome *

ORCID iD <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-0271-9217>

The rains fell with gusto
It had been many moons
Many a hungry children
Many mothers in tear
As fathers looked up into the sky.

The sound of rain drops
Was welcome with song
The elders stood at the foot of the Mugumo tree
For such a hunger had never been seen
Many a death had wiped off some villages.

The rain brought jubilation
The children dashed out to dance
The mothers rushed out to play
As the fathers whistled, in the showers that fell.

Suddenly, the rains halted
The people looked up again
Why, did it stop suddenly?
Would the crops grow?
Would the animals have enough to drink?
Would there be enough water for all.

The elders at the foot of the gracious tree
Called upon God again, as they pleaded for the rains to pour.

It took many other days of dryness
Sadness wiped the village again
For no one, could predict the weather
The clouds swept through again, but no drop.
The sun lit and hit again, as it burned life.

Have we sinned?
Who has sinned?
Questions lingered with the elders.
Unbeknownst, the village was suffering because of "others" sin.
"Others" littered and smoked the atmosphere.
The effects dropped in the South.
And the elders thought there were cursed.

Who will save the South from the effects of Climate Change?

* Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, Kenyatta University

Why suffer when your neighbor sins.
The elders teared and looked up again.
If only, the World had lived sustainably.
The South would not suffer, for the North would be conscious
That, the Earth was our Mother, nourishing her would save us.

Recebido em: 11/10/2022

Aceito em: 20/12/2022

Para citar este texto (ABNT): NYAMBURA, Salome. The rains have stopped. Njinga & Sepé: Revista Internacional de Culturas, Línguas Africanas e Brasileiras. São Francisco do Conde (BA), vol.3, nº1, p.536-537, jan. - jun. 2023.

Para citar este texto (APA): Nyambura Salome. (jan./jun.2023) The rains have stopped. Njinga & Sepé: Revista Internacional de Culturas, Línguas Africanas e Brasileiras. São Francisco do Conde (BA), 3 (1): 536-537.