

Editorial

The volume 18, 2019 of the Nigerian School Library Journal (NSLJ) is out for your purchase. It will surely be a useful addition to your resource collection on school librarianship in Nigeria and beyond. The volume features articles on print and non-print resources in school library media centre, the competencies for school library media specialists as change agent in the education system, and the adoption of bibliotherapy to solve behavioural problems of the juveniles. There are also articles on health information management in hospitals, job effectiveness of school library media specialists, promotion of reading habits of secondary school students and integration of ICT to facilitate collaborative learning in educational institutions. It is a volume that will enrich your knowledge on contemporary school librarianship and I commend it for your selection as new addition to your stock.

The NSLJ plans to increase its frequency to twice a year in the year 2020. We seek your support in submitting publishable articles on time. The Journal continues to be indexed by AJOL and it has been accorded a higher status that will reflect in its visibility by 2020.

Your sustained interest in NSLJ is highly appreciated.
